

PREFACE

This publication presents a variety of demographic and geographic data on pupils enrolled in non-academic post-secondary educational institutions, and on the fields of study offered in these institutions. The main role of these institutions is to train those studying in them in fields that will enable them to better meet the demands and needs of the labour market. The publication also provides information on the learning process, the duration of study, and time of study.

The publication provides information on the scope of training and its process on the part of various government ministries such as the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Labor (practical engineers and technicians) and the Ministry of Health (nurses).

In addition, data are provided on the activities of institutions under private ownership, which train for post-secondary diplomas in accordance with the needs of the labour market.

Dr. Dmitri Romanov

Chief Scientist

Jerusalem, 2007